OUR LEADING MEN.

With quill inspired, with brilliant golden pen, I'd write a tribute to our leading men. But it is hard to know just who they are. Or where they're leading us—how far, I feel extremely doubtful what to say about them in an eulogizing way.

Who are our leading men—our millionaires. With fortunes built on broken hearts, and prayers.

Of brothers, perishing that these may live. Our leading men?—how far, I feel extremely doubtful what to say about them in an eulogizing way.

They're surely not our wisest men, nor best. Is it our politicians? Do they lead?

Our whole great nation in the path of greed? Or do we rush ahead to get the graft. And then give them their portion with a laugh and an indecent deadly wound.

It's our politicians? Do they lead? Our whole great nation in the path of greed? Or do we rush ahead to get the graft. And then give them their portion with a laugh and an indecent deadly wound.

It's our politicians? Do they lead? Our whole great nation in the path of greed? Or do we rush ahead to get the graft. And then give them their portion with a laugh and an indecent deadly wound.

A BALLAD OF BUDDHA.

Who is the woman that cometh
Where the Buddha sits at rest,
Sobbing the while she beareth
Her dead child on her breast?

"Help me!"—the cry of her anguish;
"Help me, Enlightened One!
Hast thou the power and the mercy
To give me back my son?"

Answers the Buddha kindly,
"Why grief, it shall pass away,
And thy son shall be thine again,
And thy night be turned to day;

"Bring me the seed of mustard;
Though but a single seed,
If it come from the place appointed,
That shall be all we need."

"What is the place appointed?
Tell me, Enlightened One,
Where shall I find the mustard
That will give me back my son?"

Answers the Buddha kindly,
"In hovel or hall of pride
Where never a wife or husband
Or parent or son has died."

Searching, the woman wanders
Afar on her eager quest
For the seed that will soothe and banish
The pain that gnaws her breast.

But in every home she enters,
Or hovel or hall of pride,
There are hearts bowed down in sorrow
For loved ones who have died.

Their sorrow calls for service;
And the while she tarries there
She lifts a bit the burden
That comes with grief and care.

Then lo! her search is ended;
Her night becomes the day;
For in the grief of others
Her own has passed away.

YOUTH'S Companion

MULE-FOOT COLONY.

"Pigs is Pigs," to be sure, but there is a difference. If anyone doubts this, he can visit Greenwood Villa Farm in Harrison, and become acquainted with an entirely different variety from the common, every day kind of pig. A most delightful morning was passed there recently by the writer and others, calling at the farm, formerly the home of Philanthrop Tolman, where a most modern pigery has been started, under the direction of his granddaughter, Miss Laura Tolman, of Winchester, Mass.

Miss Tolman is much interested in the mule-foot variety, but somehow you forget that you came to a modern farm when you meet the fair proprietor, for she is most charming and talented, a dainty, womanly type, and you feel you would like to talk with her about almost anything but pigs. You enjoy sitting in the old-fashioned parlor, with the view of Long Lake in the distance, and looking over her collection of photos of noted singers, or foreign scenes, and hearing of her life as a musician, when she toured the country as a brilliant solo player and won many laurels. But after a little you find that here is one of the many instances when an accident has interfered temporarily with a brilliant career, for the little lady tells us of a fall from a platform one night after a concert and of an injury which compelled her to give up her music for a few years. Her active mind required some employment and she first began to raise mushrooms, and made quite a success of it, too. But she has always been fond of animals—she will tell you about her noble St. Bernard dog—and she happened to hear of this new breed of pigs, the mule foot, which was being raised so successfully abroad. The more she read the more interested she became, and feeling that the outdoor life would be beneficial, decided to come down to her grandfather's farm in Harrison, and experiment.

Of course she couldn't do this alone, so she was most fortunate in obtaining as manager of the farm, Deatur Faw, a colored man who is most proficient in carrying out the various arrangements necessary for raising the proper family of pigs, and for generally superintending the farm. He is from Tennessee, the son of a federal soldier in the Civil War; but Colorado is evidently the theatre of his agricultural labors, in which he seems surprisingly proficient.

A short distance north from Greenwood Villa, across the road, one crosses through a grove of trees and enters the long building where some of the pigs are kept. The families have separate pens, and we saw and heard they have names, also, for Miss Tolman addresses them as Anthony and Cleopatra, Alice, Constance, and by other familiar names. You at once remark on the cleanliness of the place, and are told that pigs are naturally neat, if they are only kept so. Miss Tolman believes that every animal will respond to training, that if you treat one with kindness and can bring about wonderful results. And the collection of mule feet certainly bears out her statement for they are most interesting, from the big ones, some of which weigh 225 pounds, to the little ones of three weeks of age. The name is from the fact that the tiny hoof is different from the pig of this breed, and resembles a mule's foot. It is claimed that this breed has various points of superiority, being cholera immune, the pork sweeter and better, and being unequalled as breeders. In color they are black and a group of mules and little ones is most interesting to watch.

Passing out of the long pen, we cross a bridge over a ravine and come into a large yard, where hogs and pigs of all sizes are having the times of their lives. They are friendly creatures and gather round for a rub on the back or nose around to be petted. The little clasp of the party found a great fascination in their funny faces, which he delighted in grasping, until restrained from so doing.

A spring nearby has been piped for the necessary water and a cook house is being built over this for preparing and heating the food. A shelter is also built in the yard for cold weather.

Large areas of the farm are planted to different kinds of food, many varieties unknown in this vicinity. Immense sugar beets and enormous ears of yellow corn are raised, the latter being used more particularly for the poultry. Federettes, which look like corn, and is a product of Egypt, is also raised here. This develops in 60 days and looks very much like corn. Four acres are planted to yellow corn and sugar beets.

Miss Tolman has had many visitors to see her farm and is investigating regarding this new kind of pig. It is her hope that the Maine farmers may become interested to such an extent that the breed may be introduced in this State. She is Vice President of a corporation devoted to the mule-foot breed of Swine, having its home office in Colorado with branches in several of the states.—Bridgton News.

Hudson's Extra Touring Car

The Big, Efficient, Roomy "54"

We have on show now the latest model of one of the greatest cars that Hudson ever built.

It is built in particular for long-distance driving—for endurance, for speed, for coping with any road condition.

But it is also for men who want an impressive car, big, handsome, roomy and distinguished.

The Hudson "54" has been tested in millions of miles of hard driving. Thousands of owners consider it the greatest touring car that's built.

It has made many a 10,000-mile trip without developing a fault or a weakness.

This car has large gasoline capacity. It has wide seats and deep cushions. It is designed for comfortable touring, day after day, no matter what the roads.

It has a fourth speed for fine roads.

It is built for hard usage, for steep hills, for sand and mud and snow.

After four years it now represents finality in a touring car—the finest big car that Hudson engineers can build.

We can make immediate delivery to first-comers on this Hudson masterpiece.

Brooklyn and New York.

I suppose that few people know why the part of Lovell village lying on the west side of the river is called Brooklyn. It is called Brooklyn. A number of years ago a man was driving through to Lovell and after driving through the Sweden place, just past the corner of the settlement. He did not know where he was and seeing a man coming along the road, he hailed him and asked him if he could tell him where he was. The man stopped and looked him over and said, "Are you from New York?" "Yes," he replied. "I can tell you you are in the wagon." "I don't mean that I wanted to know what town I am in." "Oh, well they call this Brooklyn and if you go down that hill and across the bridge by the mills, you will be right in the heart of New York City."

At the hotel the man told of his talk and ever since the village has gone by those two names. George Marston was the man that told him where he was. Mr. Marston still lives in Brooklyn where he has a good farm. He is a millman and used to work in the mill. And it was said he could grind the best meal that was ever ground at the mill.

Your Pocket-Knife, the Best Tobacco-Cutting Machine

Because it cuts the tobacco off the plug as you use it—insuring you fresh tobacco for every pipeful. Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

Bequests to Bridgton.

By the will of the late Clara Fogg, which has been made public, two bequests are made which are of special interest. After providing for a number of relatives she gives to the first Universalist society of Bridgton her homestead premises located on Main street, the society to use the same as a parsonage for its minister, if desired. If it is not wanted for a parsonage, it may be used for other purposes and the income devoted to paying the salary of the preacher. In case preaching services are discontinued at this church for three consecutive years the premises are forfeited by the society and revert to the heirs of Miss Fogg. A double tenement house on Main street, just below the homestead premises, is bequeathed to Winburn M. Staples, Edward S. Abbott and Herbert Lombard as trustees, who are to hold and manage this property and any income that may be derived from it. At any time within 20 years the trustees

CARRY STOMACH JOY IN YOUR VEST POCKET

The Noyes Drug Store Has Such Faith in this Dyspepsia Remedy that They Guarantee It.

One of the greatest successes in the sale of medicine has been achieved by Mi-on-a, the standard dyspepsia remedy and its sale is increasing so rapidly that the Noyes Drug Store, the popular drug store, has hard work to keep a stock on hand. It is very popular with bankers, ministers, lawyers and others whose business or profession keeps them closely confined, while those who have brought on indigestion through irregular eating, worry, or other causes, have found relief in this reliable remedy.

Mi-on-a comes in tablet form and is sold in a metal box especially designed for convenience in carrying the medicine in the pocket or purse. It is pleasant to take, gives quick relief and should help any case, no matter of how long a standing. This remedy has been so uniformly successful that The Noyes Drug Store will in future sell Mi-on-a under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it should not prove entirely satisfactory.

may establish the property as a hospital, being authorized to form a corporation for this purpose. If the trustees choose, they may sell the property and turn the proceeds over to the corporation thus formed, to be used for "hospital purposes," according to the judgement of the members of the corporation. Miss Fogg requests that no bond be required from the trustees.

In making this request Miss Fogg realized that the fund to be thus devoted would be insufficient, but she expresses the hope that it may form the nucleus of a large fund.

Miss Fogg also gives to the Eureka club, which is the Masonic club, the building which was the first home of the library in this village, together with the grounds for a term of 20 years but no longer. During this period the property must be kept in good condition and insured by the club. At the end of 20 years the property goes to the trustees, who have the authority to sell it, the proceeds going to the hospital corporation, if such be formed. Another bequest of the sum of $300 to Endora Lodge of Rebekahs, the income to be devoted to the care of the sick. Provision is also made for the erection of a monument in the family burying grounds.

EAST SWEDEN.

More men have been put on the force and Mr. Bishop's barn is being rushed towards completion. Very few in this section have been lucky enough to get a deer thus far, but are hoping for better luck later on. This is an off year for apples in this part of the town, some not having enough for their own use through the winter. Daniel J. Adams reports about twelve barrels. This is the largest lot we think raised in this neighborhood this year. Potatoes also are in the not plenty list, hardly any one getting more than one-half a crop.

Frank Dawson and wife of Highland Park, Fryeburg, visited at O. H. Haskell's last week.

Maine Receives $5500.

The general education board, one of John D. Rockefeller's philanthropy enterprises, announced that it had made grants totalling $375,000 to four colleges and had provided the funds for a number of novel experiments in the field of education.

The gifts are: Carlton college, Northfield, Minn., a Congregational institution, $100,000; Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., Episcopal, $50,000; Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., Presbyterian, $200,000, and Kalamazoo college, Kalamazoo, Mich., Baptist, $25,000.

The board has appropriated $5500 to the department of education of Maine for the promotion of rural education along the lines encouraged by the board in southern states and $5000 to the New Hampshire superintendent of education to organize a bureau for the critical study of school processes.

The proposed study of the Gary system is undertaken in order that a complete and authoritative account of this most interesting and important development in school work may be available to other communities that would like to try it, but have not the time or facilities to investigate it.

One of the most important undertakings will be the study of training of teachers for rural schools. Most of the training of school teachers up to this time has been the kind that attracts them to city schools with the result that they are improperly equipped for country schools where agricultural and domestic pursuits are of more importance. Minnesota has developed distinctly novel and successful methods of procedure in dealing with this problem and it is the purpose to have the results of the experience in this state placed before the country.

OTISFIELD GORE.

Corn Limpers! Use "Gets-It" and Smile!

Corns Come Right Off, Clean and Quick! You Needn't Limp, or Fuss With Your Corns Any More!

What's the use of spoiling a good time for yourself by limping around with those corns? It's one of the easiest things in the world, now, to get rid of them. "Gets-It" does it.

"Those Corns Come Right Off, Clean As a Whistle, by Using 'Gets-It'."

the new way. That's why "Gets-It" has become the corn remedy of America, the biggest selling corn remedy in the world, preferred by millions. You remember that too-eating salve you tried that stuck to your foot, that too-bundling bandage, the scumming you've done with knives, razors and scissors? Well now, forget them all. No more fussing, no more pain. Whenever you use simple, easy "Gets-It," the corn is doomed sure. So is every callus, wart or bunion. Never cut corns or calluses, it makes them grow that much faster and increases the danger of blood poisoning. No cutting is necessary by using "Gets-It." Use it tonight and end your corn's existence. "Gets-It" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.
